

More lots a night, from the trucks you already run.

Every plate checked from the truck, so drivers go straight to the tow.

BEFORE PARKVA

Hang tags, quickly out of date.

Drivers walk each lot by flashlight.

Hope the driver knows the board president's car.

Where a tow doesn't fit, the car stays.

You look like every other tow company.

WITH PARKVA

Parkva Patrol checks each property's own permit list.

Two cameras read both sides as the truck drives.

The Allow List rides on the tablet.

Print a ticket in the truck.

Bring each property a whole parking program.

"If my drivers are walking, they might hit
3 or 4 properties in a shift. With Parkva, we can hit 20."

1 Set up with you.

Import your rosters and post each zone's sign, then invite residents to a program that's ready.

2 Everyone serves themselves.

Residents register themselves and guests buy passes at the sign, so the permits your drivers check stay current.

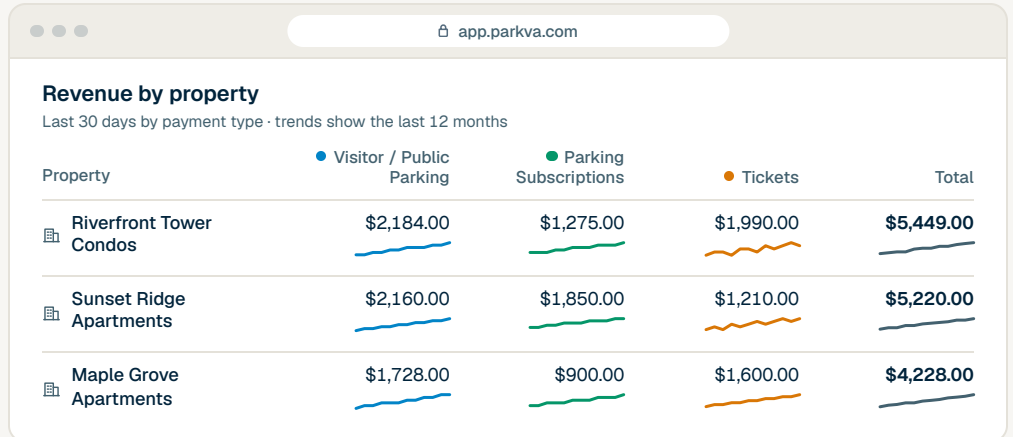

3 Checked on every pass.

Every plate is matched to the property's live list, and one tap checks it again before a tow.

BEYOND THE TOW

Offer each property the whole program: resident permits, paid guest passes, and first-offense tickets. Properties get fewer complaints and more revenue; you win more accounts.

Revenue by property, on Parkva's Home screen. Payouts divide at payment, as each party agreed.

1 Found on the pass.

226ZZE reads red: no permit at Sunset Ridge.

2 Printed in the truck.

One tap prints it in the cab, with its own payment code, before your driver leaves.

3 Paid or appealed.

Whoever parked pays or appeals by phone; residents hear after your driver leaves.

See Patrol on your route.

Tell us a few properties on your route and the permit system at each. We'll show you Patrol checking plates against them, and the tow request your dispatcher would get.
